Atlas Missile Leaves Ground; Blows Apart

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—A fluke radio signal—perhaps from hundreds of miles away—might have knocked the Air Force's Atlas intercontinental missile out of the sky Friday by telling it to do the wrong things, rocketmen said today.

This was one of many theories advanced by rocketmen who were much in doubt about what flew the great bird on its fifth flight after it had soared for nearly three minutes.

It is just as likely, the missile-men felt, that careful study of information sent back electronically by the missile may turn up some mechanical fault which caused the 100-ton Atlas to go into configurations which destroyed it. The full answer probably will not be known for days.

An Air Force announcement said only that the Atlas "destroyed itself shortly after completion of the powered phase of its flight." This indicated that the thundering engines which heaved the Atlas aloft in a cloud of flame and smoke performed normally.

But there had been a long delay in preparing the 5,500-mile range missile before it was finally launched at 2:30 p.m. e.s.t. Liquid oxygen had been put into the Atlas at mid-morning, but then was "dumped" during the holdup.

Weather may have been partly responsible. But the Air Force has had trouble before keeping the radio frequencies clear on which the missile sends back the crucial information about its flight, and this was believed to be a problem Friday.

On one previous occasion, signals from a taxi driver's radio in a distant city had just the right "bounce" from the upper atmosphere to hit Cape Canaveral on the critical frequency and held up operations for hours.

Flying Risk Occupation Hazard

NEW YORK (UP)—With a few exceptions, major league executives and players accept the risk of airplane crashes as an "occupational hazard."

A United Press survey made that clear today in the wake of Thursday's crash in Munich which killed seven members of the Manchester United soccer team. National League teams must fly, of course, to meet a schedule which includes two West Coast teams. American League teams also are increasing flights.

Baseball's most notable non-flyers are the New York Yankees, who have made only six flights in the last three years and have not planned for this year. No change in their policy is anticipated as long as George Weiss is general manager.

Three National League teams—the Dodgers, Giants and world champion Milwaukee Braves—will make virtually all their trips by air this year. In the American League, the Detroit Tigers will fly, except between Washington and Baltimore. The three W.L. teams will travel about 20,000 miles in the air.

Both leagues are prepared to cope with the problem of an air disaster. The A.L. has had a "disaster plan" in operation since last Dec. 5 and the N.L. has an informal agreement. The A.L. plan provides for a pool of 33 players (12 from each team) from which the stricken club would be rebuilt.

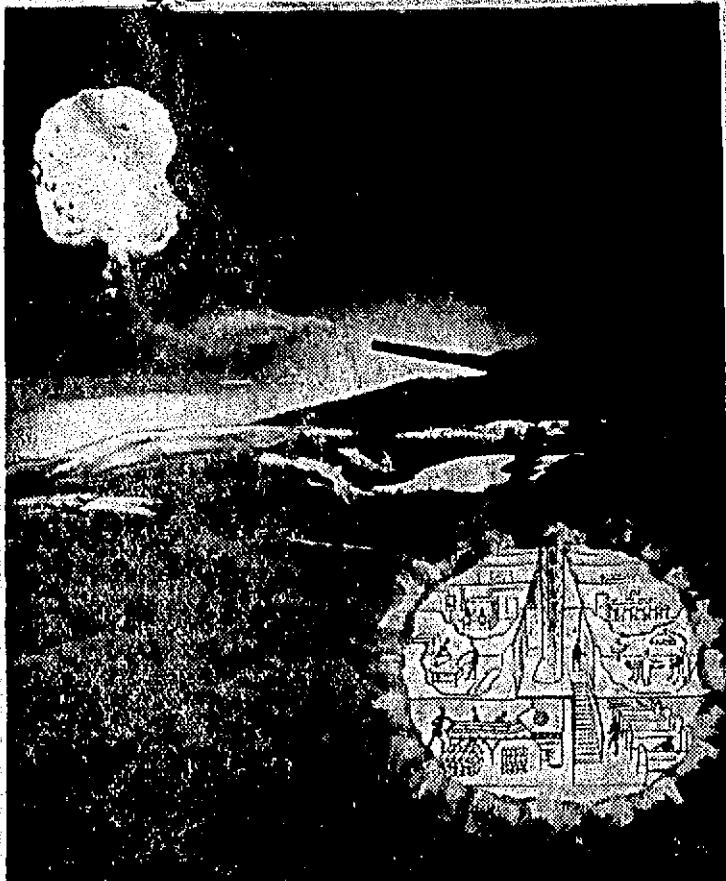

Ten years ago it was a novelty for a major league team to fly out expansion west and night ball worked a slow but steady change. No big league team ever has been involved in a plane accident of major proportions.

E. J. (Buzzy) Bayasi, a vice president of the Dodgers, made that point when he commented on the Munich disaster.

"I feel terribly sorry about this," he said. "I met some of the players in Montreal. The Dodgers, however, plan to fly on their trips. It's the only way we can keep our schedule. After all, there are more train, bus and auto accidents than airplane crashes."

Weather

Arkansas: Fair and not quite so cold today; partly cloudy and warm tomorrow.

UNDERGROUND BATTERY—Sweden's military strategy in the atomic age is to dig deep. This diagram shows an artillery battery located somewhere along the Swedish coastline. Only the gun is exposed. Living quarters, ammunition, fire-control centers and hospital facilities are buried deep in the granite cliffs guarding the narrow coastal waters. Sweden has also built giant underground harbors for protecting its fleet from possible atomic bombings.

PARALLEL PALS—Three careers as parallel as the railroad tracks upon which each has spent a lifetime is the record of three C. & O. engineers, Charles C. Sterner (left) of Toledo, O., Leon G. Renshaw (center) of Saginaw, Mich., and Fred Heubner of Grand Rapids, Mich. These men grew up as boys together in the same neighborhood in Toledo; attended the same school and started working for the C. & O. the same year—1907—at Toledo. Each is now Number One man on his seniority district and each is still actively working. All three were recently awarded 50-year diamond service pins. They are shown here when they got together recently in front of three C. & O. locomotives in Detroit. In their 150 years of collective railroad service, they estimate they have traveled more than five million miles in regular duty.

Negro Youth Tells Police He Killed Six

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—State police said today a young Negro told them he murdered six white persons in recent years, including a woman for whose death he was arrested Sunday night in Virginia's Caroline County. Authorities said five of the deaths appeared to check out.

Capt. Rodney H. Holland said the murders calmly admitted by 25-year-old Jeremiah McCray were committed during the past several years in Alabama, Georgia, Ohio and Virginia.

McCray, described by police as a defiler from Alabama, was being held in Bowling Green, Va., along with another Negro, charged with murder in the bludgeoning of a woman near Lady Smith Sunday night. Mrs. Jeanette M. Griffin, 40-year-old widow, was beaten to death, apparently with sticks of firewood.

Lt. R. B. Little Jr. of the Atlanta detective division confirmed details of a July 7 incident that McCray called a double murder. State police said, but Little added that one is still alive. She is a 70-year-old woman.

Tunney Has No Political Ambition

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Gene Tunney, who retired undefeated as the world's heavyweight boxing champion, isn't interested in battling Democratic Gov. A. Ribicoff for governor of Connecticut.

Tunney's name was being mentioned in some Republican circles as a possible gubernatorial candidate.

Eddie Hodges Wows Them on Broadway

NEW YORK (AP)—The mayor has told 10-year-old Eddie Hodges to stop singing—he's working too hard. But his mother doesn't think so. Red-haired Eddie is a Mississippi folk singer who is wowing them on Broadway in a hit musical called "Music Man."

He had been booked to appear as a guest star on Perry Como's NBC television show Saturday night, but Mayor Robert Wagner said no.

This paternal city intervention came on the advice of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The mayor's secretary, William R. Peet, said the SPCC felt Eddie's schedule, with two matinee and six evening performances a week, already is strenuous.

The SPCC held that having him rush from theater to TV studio and back again on a two-performance day would be too much of a strain, Peet said.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Sue Hodges, took a dim view of the ruling. She said the SPCC was imposing an arbitrary and unfair new ruling to keep her son from earning a sizable fee.

PROTEST REJECTED
BERLIN (UP)—East German Communist leaders have rejected a Western-drafted protest against the demolition of Jan. 18 of a church in East Berlin. The East Zone foreign office issued a statement Thursday denouncing the protest as "unjustified interference in the internal affairs of the East German Democratic Republic."

Fugitive Must Make Tough, Quick Decision

By ROBERT J. SERLING
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—If Robert Backover reads this, he has a tough decision to make—quickly. It concerns his daughter, 6-year-old Paula Ann. She is dying of leukemia. And she wants to see him.

Backover, 28, is in hiding somewhere in the nation. He is wanted on grand larceny charges.

If he fulfills his little girl's wish, he may go to prison. Backover's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Backover, phoned this story to the United Press.

Their son left for his job in a suburban Hyattsville, Md., bowling alley two weeks before Christmas. He told his wife: "I'll see you tonight." That was the last time his family saw him.

But the case was more than a missing person to Hyattsville police. They said Backover disappeared with approximately $2,500 belonging to the bowling alley.

When Backover left his family, Paula Ann was ill with an apparent virus infection. But she grew worse and was hospitalized. The doctors' verdict: leukemia, the dread disease that is cancer of the blood.

Wants Daddy Home
The child's grandmother said the family physician gave the girl from one to six months to live.

"She keeps asking for her father," the grandmother said. "She tells us 'I'd get well if Daddy came back.'"

Paula Ann's birthday is Feb. 16. She has a 9-month-old brother, Robert Jr.

The family heard that Robert was in Los Angeles, Calif., but efforts to find him failed. They asked the United Press to carry the story "as a last resort."

Navy Hunting Cause for 2nd Failure

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—The Navy hunted more parts of its Vanguard rocket today to determine just why the satellite carrier failed.

The Navy already has recovered the first stage of the ill-starred Vanguard, presumably in the murky waters off the cape where the biggest chunks of the 72-foot rocket fell.

The Vanguard was launched early Wednesday, but snapped in two after barely a minute of flight and was destroyed by remote control as it plummeted toward the sea.

More Filings Expected
Renewed activity on the cape today indicated additional missile firings are imminent at the Air Force test center.

A huge intercontinental Atlas, an intermediate range Air Force Thor and an Army missile—probably a cadence or Jupiter—stood in their service towers. The Atlas was static fired on the grounds last week.

Time for firing the missile was kept secret.

In Washington, officials said the failure was due to a simple wiring defect which prevented the "brain" of the Vanguard from sending orders to the engine control system, which could have corrected the sudden error that put too much of a strain on the three-stage Vanguard.

Cause of Defect Probed
But although the Navy knew the "what" and "how" of the Vanguard failure, the technicians still had not uncovered the "why" of the wiring defect. This might take days to discover.

"As far as we can tell there was no device that malfunctioned," the Navy said. "There seemed to be a defect in the wiring connecting the auto pilot and the hydraulic servo system of the first stage."

Therefore, when the rocket began to deviate, no correcting signal from the auto pilot could reach the first stage servo system, which in turn should have issued an electronic command correcting the trouble.

FIVE CHARGED IN PLOT
CAIRO (UP)—Five persons were under indictment of the Egyptian government today on charges of plotting to assassinate President Gamal Abdel Nasser and restore the monarchy to Egypt. The accused included Ahmed Mortada, former interior minister under King Farouk, and other Egyptian and Lebanese agents. They were alleged to have infiltrated the armed forces and formed groups to carry out the plot. Maximum penalty for conviction is life in hard labor.

Missouri Tracksters Defeat Wichita

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UP)—Lowell Bonfield won the low and high hurdles yesterday for 10 points and distinction of being the only double winner as Missouri crushed Wichita 81-23 in an indoor track meet.

It was the first win for Missouri, which bowed to Notre Dame last week. It was the first outing for Wichita.

Bonfield edged Don Jordan of Wichita in both races. Jordan was high for Wichita with six points. Bob Davis of Missouri won the broad jump and finished in a three-way tie for first in the pole vault with teammate Joe Webb and Wichita's Marvin Howard.

Adams Blamed for Attack on Stassen

WASHINGTON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen said today after a conference with President Eisenhower that he did not submit his resignation as disarmament adviser nor did the President request it.

Stassen said he and the President will hold another conference, but no date has been set yet.

He said he is still "seriously considering" running for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania.

Stassen said he would have to make a decision whether or not to leave the federal government and make his bid in Pennsylvania by March 17.

"We had a good talk and we're going to talk again," Stassen said as he left the White House.

Praise for Eisenhower
Reporters pressed him on whether or not he had resigned as reports here have said.

"I have not submitted a resignation, and the President has not asked me to," Stassen said.

He described as "erroneous" speculation that he had resigned. Stassen praised the President as one of "the great men of our time." He said he has a "supreme relationship" with Eisenhower.

"That continues to be the case," Stassen said.

Stassen turned aside all questions on what he and the President discussed today in their 40-minute talk by saying he never divulges details of meetings with the President.

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen probably is aware by now that last Sunday's hatched job on him was the work of Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief of staff.

Adams passed the word to a group of newsmen that it had been decided that Stassen's usefulness had ended as White House disarmament aide. The word was: If Stassen did not resign, his resignation would be requested.

The Eastern Metropolitan Press spread the word in Sunday morning editions for Stassen and others to read with their breakfast coffee. The President in his weekly White House news conference substantially confirmed what had been printed.

Persons not usually regarded as friendly to Vice President Richard M. Nixon are spreading the opinion around town that there is considerable political substance in support of Stassen's ambition to be elected governor of Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania party regulars are cold on Stassen, but the state's regular Republican organization is in despair. In behalf of Stassen's candidacy it is argued that he would attract Young Republican, Modern Republican, Independent, and perhaps, even some Democratic voters.

If he were elected governor next November, Stassen would control the numerous Pennsylvania delegates to the 1960 Republican National Convention. He would be expected to oppose Nixon's nomination for president and perhaps might seek the nomination himself. The present governor is George M. Leader, a Democrat.

Republicans already are beginning to duck a fearsome ballistic missile which they know will be heading their way even though it will not be fired until Washington's birthday Feb. 22.

The missile will be fired in the form of a give-em-hell speech by former President Harry S. Truman. The occasion will be a $100-a-plate fund-raising Democratic dinner in which HST will sound the opening note of the 1958 congressional campaign.

Some Republican must answer Truman and the question as of today is: Who?

President Eisenhower would be the natural and most effective Republican to make a TV appearance on or after Truman speaks. The President, however,

FRIENDLY TRAVELER—The latest in "doghouses" in this "doghouse," built by Edward Haupricht, a Toledo (Ohio) wholesaler florist. Built of fiberboard, it affords Haupricht's Scotty, "Doodle," plenty of air and an excellent view of its surroundings. Haupricht, who likes to build gadgets just for fun, calls this one "friendly traveler." A literal translation of Sputnik, Russia's earth-circling satellite, is "fellow traveler."

Overeating Is a Problem Today That Carries a Lot of Weight

By Mary Anita Laester
The following paragraphs will probably be of greater interest to the female population, though some folks will say they are strictly "for the birds."

This has been National Weight Watchers Week, and it was, no doubt, deliberately placed on the calendar after the Christmas holidays and before the time for Valentine's day.

But it is my personal opinion that more people would have been inclined to observe such a week as this if it had come immediately after the holidays. Then, as at no other time, there is less desire for rich, fattening foods.

"That was 'generally speaking' you understand, for those folks like this writer who like whipped cream on everything any time of the year."

It is a known fact that obesity is a king-size word for "fatness"—has almost become a national problem in America today. We have or make all sorts of excuses for eating "a little something" between meals. For some it's called a "coffee break," for others it's "entertaining friends." The results are the same.

A recent Filipino visitor to our town told a group that he believed "reducing diets" was one of three chief topics of conversation and subjects of thought among Americans today. He said it jokingly, but there was more truth than fiction in his words.

With one exception, excessive eating usually means additional weight. Teenagers, of course, are in a class by themselves. It is the scientific opinion of mothers that those in this age bracket have a bottomless pit instead of a stomach and enough boundless energy to offset any caloric intake.

For the rest of us, it should be remembered that "watching your weight" is like "brushing your teeth." Both should be done regularly instead of occasionally, or the results will be disappointing.

Missouri Acts to Keep Out Hoodlums

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UP)—Missouri has already set up a method of fending off hoodlums who want to get into the state's cigarette business. B. Browning, cigarette tax supervisor, said today.

State administrators of the eight states surrounding Missouri met with Missouri officials last Dec. 15 to work out a reciprocal agreement on procedures to prevent shady operations. He declined to elaborate on the agreement.

Gov. James J. Blair Jr., instructed his liquor and cigarette tax departments Wednesday to prevent hoodlums from carrying out a reported plan to move into Missouri's tavern and cigarette businesses.

Browning said no hoodlums would get cigarette selling licenses if he could help it.

"We check pretty carefully," Browning explained, through bonding companies and bank credits, on license applicants.

SQUIRRELS ON THE LOOSE
ATLANTA (UP)—A bunch of squirrels apparently went nuts in the home of Mrs. Ann Quibelle. Several of the animals entered her home through the chimney while she was away. In a panic to find a way out, the squirrels gnawed up the window shades, ripped down the Mexican blinds and broke several lamps, vases and flower pots.

Defense Head Raises Air Force Hopes

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy raised the Air Force's hopes today for operating space ships and manned satellites.

McElroy told newsmen Friday he thought the Air Force "naturally" should get the coveted job.

The defense secretary's statement was a blow to the Army and Navy. However, he partially allayed the senior service's disappointment by saying his opinion was subject to change.

Air Force leaders have long maintained that space near and far above the earth is their rightful domain. However, the Army launched the only successful U.S. satellite so far and wants authority to put up a "whole family" of earth moons to carry out its role of worldwide mapping and communications.

Navy Interested to
The Navy, still struggling to get up its Vanguard satellite, is known to be interested in handling future space vehicles.

McElroy made his statement at a news conference shortly after naming General Electric executive Roy W. Johnson to head the government's new Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) for development of outer space projects.

McElroy also indicated he favored letting present government agencies handle individual space programs once they reach an advanced stage. He appeared to be opposed to setting up a new civilian agency.

He indicated he thought the long-existent National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics was one agency well-suited for the job.

Other defense space development:

Bases Ready Early
—Authoritative sources in London said the first of four U.S. intermediate range ballistic (IRBM) missile bases to be established in Britain will be fully operational by the end of the year—ahead of schedule.

McElroy announced that he and top aides will confer in Puerto Rico for four days starting Feb. 21 in an effort to reach "tentative conclusions" on Pentagon reorganization. Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) of the Senate prearranged subcommittee announced meantime that McElroy would be called to testify Feb. 26 on progress the defense department is making in its various space-age programs.

Roy W. Johnson, the new ARPA head, is a 52-year-old General Electric vice president in charge of the company's electronics production. He is an organizational expert rather than a scientist.

Congress Told Moon Rocket a Year Away

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—Congress has been told it may be time in about a year to try to fire a rocket to the moon.

The estimate came from Dr. John P. Hagen, head of the Vanguard satellite project. Testimony he gave the House Armed Services Committee Monday has been made public in censored form.

Testimony left in the record indicated that Hagen thinks existing rocket engines could be used for such a shot. He said an effort to send instruments to the moon, without interfering with the drive to perfect intermediate-range missile weapons, might be made when either the Thor or the Jupiter gets to a production phase, where they begin to be a backlog of missiles.

In testimony prepared for the committee, Secretary of the Air Force Douglas also said rocket engines already in existence apparently have the potential, if used together, to carry a vehicle beyond the moon.

Fuchs Trying to Cross Antarctic

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (UP)—Dr. Vivian Fuchs reached Depot 700 today in his dash to become the first person to cross the Antarctic Continent.

The British scientist and half his party reached their first supply depot since leaving the South Pole at 9 p.m. New Zealand time. They had covered 500 miles from the pole in 12 days. Depot 700 is 700 miles from his Scott Base goal.

Fuchs left behind several men with two of his four Sno-cat tractors. Greaves blocked their progress 10 miles from Depot 700. They were expected to catch up in a few hours.

Approaching plover also prevented New Zealand's Sir Edmund Hillary from meeting Fuchs at the depot he set up last fall. Hillary planned to fly from Scott Base to join Fuchs as soon as weather permitted.

172 Pledge $165,055 for Industry

Hope Junior Chamber of Commerce today launched a campaign to boost the Hampstead County Industrial Foundation fund toward its goal of $250,000.

While 172 business firms and individuals have already purchased stock in the corporation, it was felt by the JC's that every employee has a stake in the community's future, and it is from this untapped source that the JC's will concentrate their campaign.

President Gets About Amount He Requested

By UNITED PRESS

The House Appropriations Committee, in its first action on President Eisenhower's new budget today gave him all but $255,000 of the money he asked to run the White House and several major agencies during the fiscal year starting July 1.

In its first fiscal 1959 money bill the committee voted a total of $14,908,870 of which $12,088,870 would go to run the executive offices. This is $147,000 more than Congress provided executive offices in the current year.

Other congressional news: Economy: Secretary of Treasury Robert B. Anderson said he would be for an income tax cut if it were needed to stimulate the economy. But he told the Congressional Economic Committee the situation "does not warrant such action now."

Jobs: The House and Senate Appropriations committees in unusual parallel action voted $33,400,000 in emergency money to meet increasing demands on the Government's unemployment compensation programs.

Debt: Budget Director Percival F. Brundage turned down a suggestion by Sen. John J. Williams (R-Ind.) that the national debt ceiling be raised gradually, rather than in a five-billion-dollar raise suggested by Williams "wouldn't give us enough of a safety factor."

Education: Dr. Lawrence G. Berthwick, U.S. commissioner of education, told the Senate Labor and Education Committee that President Eisenhower's proposed scholarship education program would half "a tremendous loss of brainpower" that occurs when so many young women fail to complete their education.

Is Leisure a Liability or a Lark?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The first of three dispatches on leisure in the United States. Today—Leisure: A lark or a liability?

By FRED DANZIG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Got a minute?

"The demand for your free time being what it is, we can't blame you if you say no."

Leisure, sometimes defined as time NOT to be used at the discretion of others, often brings us face-to-face with the most frantic, thoroughly unrelaxing days of our lives.

Consider: Nearly 4 million golfers around us play 65,700,000 rounds of golf a year on 5,260 courses. Together, they bought 35 million golf balls.

We have about 22 million bowlers. The American Rose Society has 16,500 members. And 6,500,000 Americans own pleasure boats of one size or another. It's estimated that 28 million of us go boating during the year.

At least 100 million Americans take one or more vacations every year and about 65 per cent of our 70 million wage earners now get three weeks off.

Short Week Is Near
The four-day week is around the corner. The four-week vacation, for many, is already here.

Someone figured recently that we now average 3,000 "free" hours a year. We spend about half of our wakeful hours reading newspapers, magazines, books and watching TV screens. We also listen to the radio and go to movies.

We pitch horseshoes, write, make furniture, play musical instruments, cards and games. We have 23 million hunters and fishermen who shell out 88 million dollars for licenses.

We love to call ourselves "amateurs" at something, it seems.

We also bake cakes, attend lectures, take evening courses, go visiting, and watch or take part in all kinds of sports. We're told that sports shirts now outsell "dress" shirts in America by better than two-to-one.

In terms of money, a death study by Life magazine, recently told us the average family spent $215 a year for recreation—nearly 5 per cent of our $350-billion-dollar national income.

Interest In Gardening
Go into any 100 homes and you'll probably find people actively interested in gardening in 42 of the homes. Needlework will be popular in 32. Stamp collectors, like coin collectors, figure to be in 8 out of 100 homes. You'd also find about half the people in the 100 homes belonging to clubs or organizations of one sort or another.

Are we having any fun? With all this activity, about 20 million Americans reached for tranquilizer pills last year—spending 175 million dollars for them and making the tranquilizer one of the fastest-growing businesses in America.

Susie Hooks were Monday visitors in Arkadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Tapscott, Mrs. Hattie Ervin and Mrs. James Sanford of Nashville were the guests Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore.

Mrs. Emmette Barham and Gordon of Camden were the Monday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Turner were Tuesday visitors in Texarkana.

Mrs. Nan Ellen of Camden, Ohio, wife of Consul, spent Monday in Prescott.

CHAPTER XXXVI

The passing days brought little betterment in Connie's mood. She rejoiced with Phil and Kitty in their happiness, but when considering her own future she grew pensive.

Capt. Judson Dillon caught her in the depths of this mood one day, as she stood in the doorway of her quarters.

"Connie, would you be feeling sorry for yourself?" She flashed him a quick glance. "Perhaps. I see so little in my future to cheer about."

He seized on the opening swiftly. "Your future is something I've long wanted to discuss with you. You know how I feel about you. I'd like to know—have you ever considered me?"

"Yes," she admitted, with bluntness and disconcerting frankness. "I have. And it wouldn't work out, Jud."

A dark flush rushed across his thin handsome features. "What have you against me?"

"I'm not against you, Jud. It isn't a question of anything like that. It's merely the proposition of loving or not loving. As honest individuals we cannot help our feelings in such things. Also, I'm up against a way of life I no longer care for."

Judson blinked. "I'm afraid I don't know just what you mean." She came around to face him fully. "Very well. If I agree to marry you, Jud, would you resign your commission?"

"Connie, do you realize what you're asking? I'm a professional soldier. My career is my life. What kind of a harsh bargain would you drive?"

"Don't worry," she said gently, dropping a hand on his arm. "It won't be necessary. I merely brought up such an unthinkable possibility to show you why there could be no happiness for us, either way. For should you resign your commission at my request, you'd end up despising me, and I wouldn't blame you. On the other hand, I'm no longer content with Army life."

Movement in the lower area of the fort drew Connie's glance. Another file of troops coming in. A couple more prisoners with them. Also a civilian, a big-shouldered man who loomed high in his saddle. Connie stepped swiftly past Capt. Judson Dillon, one soft, wholly eager word on her lips.

"Ward!"

For a moment Jud Dillon watched her, half angry in the knowledge that he'd ceased to exist in this girl's consciousness. Then he accepted the inevitable. Army training and its end had its way with him. Arrow-straight he walked to meet Ward Sebastian.

"Captain," Sebastian said, "how are you? Could you tell me where I might find Miss Ashland?"

"In her quarters, yonder." And now Jud Dillon fulfilled the code in its very best tradition. He put out his hand. "I'm glad to see you, Sebastian."

"Captain," Sebastian said, as their palms met. "If there be apologies due on my part for things in our country."

A psychologist, noting that 1 out of 10 Americans is in trouble, mentally, has said: "We live in an age of enormously increasing anxiety despite the fact that we've never had it so good." He blames our anxieties on "an absence of a ceiling on aspirations."

Russell Lynes, a student of the American culture, wrote "Put in its rudest terms, prosperity provides not only plenty but curious, if empty values and a national uneasiness."

Fifty years ago, Thorstein Veblen's classic, "Theory of the Leisure Class" spoke of sports as an upper-class obsession. Today, such sports as golf, tennis, horse racing and even automobile racing are increasingly popular with the lower and middle classes.

Rails Provide Much Service That's Costly

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — The recent suicide of Robert Young, chairman of the New York Central Railroad, brings to my attention the problems of the whole railroad industry. As a matter of fact, President Albert of the New Haven Railroad recently asked the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts to close over 50 railroad stations and discontinue a large number of trains, including crack trains, between Boston and New York.

One of the main reasons given for the railroads' troubles is that commuter passenger business does not pay, and is provided only at a large loss to the railroads. This is the business of bringing great numbers of people into a big city every morning, and out again at night, all within short periods of time. In order to provide such service, many stations and much new equipment must be kept in prime condition all day for this very short use.

Your local stockbroker will tell you whether this situation applies to the railroad whose stocks you now hold. With the Union Pacific and Santa Fe, the proportion of commuter business is very small in relation to the total passenger business. On the other hand, with Pennsylvania or New York Central, the proportion of commuter business is very large. Every railroad must be judged independently. We should not generalize about them.

Another reason for Mr. Albert's appeal for aid is the taxation levied on railroad real estate. Such taxes enable the cities to raise funds to build turnpikes, airplane terminals, etc., which help the competitors of the railroads. The railroads beg relief from these taxes; otherwise, they threaten to liquidate. Liquidation would in most cases, give bondholders full payment for their securities but would leave very little for the stockholders. Here again, it will be found that entirely different situations exist with different railroads.

For instance, the New York Central owns much valuable real estate in the vicinity of the Grand Central Station, New York City. Certain short-line railroads are almost real estate companies rather than railroad companies. The Southern Pacific and Great Northern have valuable oil and ore leases which secure their bonds. Here again, your broker will tell you what railroads have valuable real estate and what railroads have not. You cannot generalize. Competition from trucks, buses, airplanes, automobiles and pipelines is the basic cause of the railroads' difficulties today. The various restrictions put upon rates and practices by the Interstate Commerce Commission were instituted when the railroads had a real monopoly. Today, the railroads have no such monopoly. These rate and other restrictions should be eliminated. In fact, I believe that the business of the country of the railroads, together with their employees and passengers, would be better off if the Interstate Commerce Commission were entirely eliminated. The competition is not only rates but also in convenience. For instance, trucks take the goods from the factory door and deliver them to the consumer. Otherwise, trucks would operate from the factory to the railroad and then again from the railroad to the consumer. There are 50 million automobiles competing with the railroads. The higher the railroads raise their rates, the fewer passengers and the less freight they carry. Pipelines for oil and gas are here to stay, but the carrying of coal and oil by railroads will decrease.

One of the greatest handicaps of the railroads is the arbitrary and useless rules of the labor unions. These rules were made years ago before the use of Diesel engines, automatic signaling, and the various electrical appliances which now provide safety. The worst of all is the so-called "featherbedding" whereby the railroads must pay for time which is not used in any productive manner while they are largely forbidden to introduce labor-saving equipment.

During the past few months, I have interviewed several railroad presidents. When I asked them the main reason for the difficulties of the railroads, they replied—"because of the foolish and expensive rules of the labor unions." Unfortunately, it takes much courage for congressmen to try to curb union labor.

A large amount of railroad track should never have been laid. Certain railroads were built, not to carry passengers and freight, but rather to sell stocks and bonds. Such railroad trackage should now be discarded and thousands of railroad stations should be closed. I feel that conditions may go from bad to worse until our whole railroad system collapses and has to be reorganized. Such reorganization could eliminate the useless duplication.

On the other hand, so many railroad bond issues are secured by so many different kinds of assets that each railroad would have to be reorganized independently. This would be sure to take a long time, but most first-mortgage and certain other railroad bonds should come out in the end worth par and interest.

Therefore, my conclusion is this: It may be better for you to sell your railroad securities now and reinvest the money in some new and growing industry. Otherwise, reinvest in these railroad bonds later, when they will sell for half their present price. I now see little hope for most railroad stocks.

"The Missouri Traveler," second major Technicolor production in C. V. Whitney's American Series, is a very human, humorous, exciting and dramatic movie giving a memorable nostalgic view of small town life in the nation's Middle West half a century ago. It is indeed real Americana and one leaves the movie with a wonderful feeling.

Filmed in color by Technicolor, "The Missouri Traveler" is superbly cast, with Brandon de Wilde, the wistful boy star of "Shane," now a mainly fifteen, portraying the runaway orphan about whom the story pivots; Lee Marvin, the powerful actor currently the toast of Hollywood because of his great performance in "Raintree County" giving another great acting performance as a hard-fisted farmer; Gary Merrill, appearing as the editor of the town's weekly; Paul Ford, the commanding officer of Sergeant Bilko, who plays a lovably humorous role; and the much publicized Mary Hoford, who makes an auspicious film acting debut as a rich spinster.

UP TO 22 TIMES SAFER
...than HOME!

THERE'S A lot of things about our theatre that many people don't know. Take its marvelous safety features, for example, MOST OF these are built-in and do not catch the eye. But it's a fact you and your children are 22-times safer here, enjoying a fine show, than you are if home — or in bed.

THAT'S RIGHT! Ask your insurance man. He has the rates. He knows.

WHEN YOUR youngsters want the car tonight, suggest they go to the show. They can get killed out on the highways in a split-second. But if they spend each evening for the next 50-years here in our theatre, they likely wouldn't receive a scratch.

MAKE IT a family plan to regularly relax. Have the entire family go out together, at least one night a week. Come here to enjoy a good, new show!

When to Fish or Hunt SOLUNAR TABLES

by John Alden Knight

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times. If you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

WORSHIP EVERY SUNDAY IN YOUR FAVORITE CHURCH

YOU NEED THE SPIRITUAL UPLIFT OF A PRAYER-HOUR IN GOD'S HOUSE

Lessons We Teach

There are little minds hearing words, receiving impressions, being taught. A passing teacher fixed it that way. "Little pitchers have big ears." That is why wise sayings often fall from tiny lips...they are repeating you. What words are you passing on to your child or your neighbors' children...what are you teaching them? They all have talent but it must first be awakened by someone if it is to grow and be productive. We can give them good tastes in food, recreation, reading and religion. Actually, we carry the next generation on our shoulders. I wonder where we are taking them. Are we giving them good environment? Do we take them to church? Their future depends upon The Lessons We Teach.

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we on Sunday, "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.
